Advantages of the 3-Week Interpretation Program in MGIMO, Moscow

Presentation by Yana Shkabrova
MGIMO was established in 1944, and it is the most elite university in Russia. It is run by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. It is a privilege to attend classes there.
MA in Simultaneous Interpretation in International Organizations

The program includes:

- Translation and Interpretation classes (Russian<>English)
- Translation and Interpretation classes from your C language (Spanish or French) into Russian
- Lectures on linguistics, translation theory and international relations
Opportunity to visit the Moscow State Linguistic University (MSLU)

Courses you can attend

- Preparation course for the entrance interpretation exam at the United Nations
- Lectures on linguistics and translation theory
- Translation and Simultaneous Interpretation courses
Knowledge and experience exchange among peers is very important. An opportunity to get feedback from another experienced professor and interpreter is valuable.

Professor Anna Zarochentseva with a group of second year students from the MA in Simultaneous Interpretation program (MGIMO)
Another benefit is to meet professors who achieved a lot in the industry and wrote multiple works on interpretation and translation theory.

Professor Irina Zubanova (second from the right) teaches interpretation at MSLU. He has written many articles and several books on interpretation.
MGIMO’s bookstore is full of practical books on interpretation and translation
Being able to live in Moscow for three weeks is another bonus. It’s a bustling city that has a lot to offer culturally and historically.
Thank you. I hope you’ll enjoy the program as much as I did!